

GIRLS OF LOCAL CAMP FIRE MAKE GREAT STRIDES

Several Will Assume Rank of "Woodgatherer" Soon
WAS ORGANIZED IN 1927
Mrs. Russell Ellis, Guardian, Well Pleased With Progress

Experiencing a steady growth since organization last September, over 60 per cent of the Camp Fire Girls of Bristol are nearly ready to assume the next rank—that of Woodgatherer.

Speaking of the Camp Fire Girls' organization, the local guardian, Mrs. Russell Ellis, of Radcliffe street, said today this organization was chosen rather than some other because it has distinctly feminine ideas and ideals.

The ten girls who will be ready to attain the first rank within the next few weeks are: Mary McAuley, Elizabeth LaRue, Sylvia Howell, Alice Taylor, Daisy Strouse, Rose Stephenson, Mary Cornell, Betty Hill, Mae VanDoren and Meta Landreth. Others who are affiliated with the group are: Peggy Allen, Esther Stephenson, Kitty Chant, Carrie Worthington, Lillian Holmes and Alberta Ricketts.

There are seven points to the camp law and each is an appeal to the girls to gain higher knowledge and learn more of the things of beauty and usefulness. They are: Seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold on to health, glorify work, be happy.

"Matulconk" is the name that has been selected for the camp fire group here. "This is the Indian name for Burlington Island," remarked the guardian, "and our symbol is an island." Indian lore is brought into play to a great extent in connection with this organization. When a girl joins the camp she selects an Indian name, and when the head-bands are fashioned by each from tiny beads the symbol of the member's Indian name is woven into it.

In order to become a member a girl must be 11 years of age, and is required to have earned the sum of one dollar for the annual dues. She must know the purpose and ideals of the organization, and be able to state the full name of the following persons: President of the United States, governor of the state, highest city official. The individual must also know the number of stars and stripes in the American flag and explain the symbolism of the flag. She is required to know the watchword and be able to give the hand-sign of the organization; know the name of the Camp Fire Girls official publication, "Everygirl's" magazine; and the camp fire law.

After becoming a member the lassie may purchase the ring showing the seven facets which represent the seven points of the Camp Fire Girl law. The rings also have on same the circles, which stand for the watchword—"Work, Health, Love."

One of the incentives and a most unique one is the awarding of symbolic beads for the honors in the seven different branches. These branches are given as: Home, health, camp, hand-craft, nature, business and patriotism. The beads are of various shapes and size, and are all fashioned of wood. Some are painted in various colors, and others are carved. Proud indeed are the girls as they add coveted beads to their string.

For the rank of Woodgatherer, which several are to attain soon, 14 honors must be won. Three of these points must be from each of the three divisions—home, citizenship and nature.

When the girls join the group they are required to check up on health habits for a period of one month. They are to win 450 points on the health chart presented to them before attaining the first rank.

"When the members become woodgatherers they will be eligible for gowns," said Mrs. Ellis. The gowns are made by the girls and are fashioned to resemble the costume of an Indian maiden. Many members throughout the country have symbols embroidered upon same, and fringed leather adds to the attractiveness.

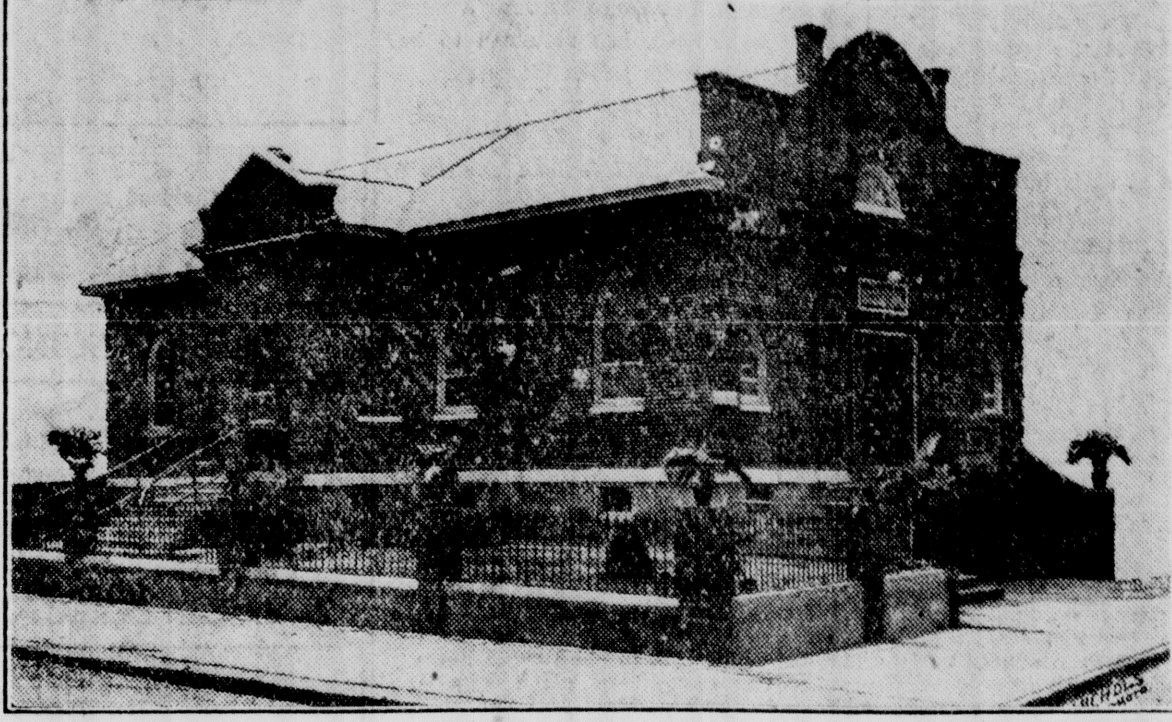

Since its inception last fall the girls here have done much work of a public nature. Just prior to Christmas they dressed a number of dolls and sent the lot to an Indian school in South Dakota. Five layettes have been made for the Junior Branch of the Needlework Guild, and a number of the girls have assisted with church affairs. They all enjoy hiking, and at one time the members walked to New Jersey's state capital.

There are only 20 permitted to join one group; the others applying for membership being required to form another group. Thus the guardians have a better opportunity of assisting each girl personally, and of forwarding the work of their particular groups. The weekly meetings here are held on Thursday afternoons.

MAN DIES; GORED BY BULL ON FARM; AUTO ACCIDENTS

James Finn, 60, Terribly Torn By the Enraged Animal
THREE WOMEN HURT
Crash at South Bristol Did Not Result Seriously

A series of accidents occurred here and in this vicinity over the holiday and two deaths are reported as the result.

James Finn, 60, 4633 Whitaker avenue, Philadelphia, died in the Harriman Hospital, last night, as the result of being gored by a bull on the Bellemead Farm, Bristol Township.

Finn had been employed at the Bellemead Farm for the past three months and was sober and industrious. He is highly spoken of by his employer.

The bull, a fine, big, six year old animal, was noted about the farm as being somewhat dangerous. Finn had been warned to be careful.

Tuesday afternoon about the milking had been done the other men working about the farm placed the milk in the automobile and were taking it to the spring house to cool. Finn was at the barn and just what happened is not known exactly, except what Finn was able to tell after the accident.

Finn stated, "the bull got me." The man was heard to scream and those who went to his rescue found him outside of the barnyard lying on the ground, terribly torn about the stomach. Evidently Finn had attempted to put the bull back in the barn after the animal had finished drinking. The bull was the only animal in the barnyard at the time of the accident.

High mass will be said at St. Mark's Church Saturday at 10 a. m. Friends may call at the parlors of the H. S. Rue Estate, undertakers, Friday evening.

HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATS LANGHORNE, 10 TO 3

First Time in History That Local Students Have Won from Rivals

By T. M. Juno
Tuesday afternoon at Langhorne, Bristol High walked away with a hard earned victory over Langhorne High School by the score of 10 to 3.

It was the first time since the Bristol High School originated that it has been victorious over its traditional rival, Langhorne. The Cardinal and Gray won over its rival in basketball, track, debating and now baseball. Last year's baseball team held the Langhorne nine down until the final inning when a sudden spurt by Langhorne clinched the game. Previous to the meeting the teams played to a 7-7 standstill on the local grounds.

"Mike" De Risi stands out as the only Bristol High pitcher to win over Langhorne. He made a wonderful job of it, allowing but four hits and striking out eleven of the opposing batters. He walked but three men.

The local school held up well on the defense and except in the second the errors were widely separated.

Langhorne played good baseball, but the pitchers were too wild and could not find the plate. Fourteen of the Bristol batters received walks. Stradling held the locals well in check after he relieved Hibbs.

"Les" Satterthwaite increased his batting average by whamming two doubles in three times at bat.

The batting of "Larry" David seems a mystery. In the Bryn Athyn game he walked six times. In Langhorne he was hit by the pitcher twice and walked once.

Erwin and R. Wright shined on the Langhorne team. Bristol meets Bordentown at Bordentown on Friday. On Tuesday Bristol will stage a "Booster" game with Bordentown. This game will close the local baseball season which is turning out to be the best in years. Bristol has won eleven games, lost two and tied two.

FIELD CLUB WINS FROM A. O. H. BY SCORE OF 4 TO 2

One of the Best Games Played Here So Far This Season

JONES ON THE MOUND SPEAKS AT CONFERENCE

By T. M. Juno
Field Club continued their winning streak here last night by winning a closely fought battle with A. O. H. The score was 4 to 2. The battle was one of the best games that have been played on the St. Ann's field this season.

Jones hurled them for Field Club the "Irish" team but five hits and set-and pitched masterpiece ball, allowing them down nine via the strikeout route. His support held up wonderfully.

Lake tossed them for the Hibbes and for three innings had the champions biting, but they bunched their hits in the closing frames and won the game. His support was errorless.

Both teams were in the first. After Beaton's single, Dugan and Cochrane went out at first, and J. Fine struck out. For the Hibbians, Thompson hit to Beaton and was out. Margerum fanned. J. Brady lifted to W. Fine.

Goose eggs went up for both teams again in the second. Hibbs walked and was nabbed trying for second. W. Fine breezed. Deitrich hit to Thompson. Lyden singled and was forced by J. Dougherty. L. Brady and H. Brady struck out.

Both teams received zeros in the third, though Field Club had players on third and second. McGlynn walked, Jones forced McGlynn at second, Thompson to Dougherty. Beaton fanned. Dugan singled, Jones going to third. Dugan took second on the throw-in. Cochrane hit to Lake and went out at first. McGlynn whiffed for A. O. H. Lake was thrown out at first by W. Fine while Hibbs caught Thompson's fly.

Field Club scored their first run in the fourth. J. Fine singled, Hibbs bled to center. W. Fine walloped a double through Dougherty, scoring J. Fine. Deitrich hit to Thompson, who threw to Margerum, getting W. Fine going into third. McGlynn fled to Margerum.

A. O. H. failed to score in their half. Margerum fanned. J. Brady walked. Lyden hit in front of the plate and was thrown out by Hibbs. J. Brady going to second. Dougherty singled, sending J. Brady to third. L. Brady failed to connect.

Two more runs went to Field Club in the fifth. Jones got a one-base blow. Beaton did likewise, sending Jones to third. Beaton went to second unmolested. Dugan fanned. M. Cochrane singled, scoring Jones and Beaton. J. Fine whiffed and Hibbs was thrown out by J. Dougherty.

A. O. H. scored their only runs in their half. W. Fine fumbled H. Brady's roller. McGlynn socked a double to left, scoring H. Brady. Lake struck out. Thompson hit to short and went out at first. Margerum singled, scoring McGlynn. J. Brady hit to short and was out.

Field Club scored again in their part of the sixth inning. W. Fine walked and scored on Deitrich's hit to left. Deitrich went out at third trying to make three bases on it. McGlynn was out at first, Thompson to Lyden. Jones doubled Beaton's hit to (Continued on Page Six)

WOMEN SHOULD BUILD UP AND STRENGTHEN PARTY

This Is the Advice Given by Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler

COMMENCEMENT JUNE 19

"The greatest service that women can render to the cause of responsible government is to build up and strengthen the party of their choice, to do their share in making sure that it represents the highest political ideals, that it supports the most constructive policies, and nominates the best candidates."

This was the message brought to the Republican women from thirty-three counties in south-central Pennsylvania who assembled at the Penn Alto Hotel (Altoona), recently, for a conference by Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, vice-chairman of the Republican State Committee of New York. Miss Butler, daughter of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, made one of her rare visits outside the Knickerbocker State in response to an invitation from Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, president of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women.

"Women and the Two Party System" was Miss Butler's subject, and her talk was full of pertinent advice to the women of the Keystone State concerned now with shaping plans for their activities in the approaching Presidential campaign.

"Perhaps the most significant and the most healthy result of woman's suffrage has been to dispel the ideal that theirs is a 'woman's vote,'" Miss Butler said. "It has been pretty conclusively demonstrated that women—as a sex—do not vote alike any more than men do. This is both natural and normal. So long as the family remains likely to be the basic unit of our social life, it is likely to be the basic unit of (Continued on Page Four)

Herring Back at Tullytown After Short Absence

"Herring have returned to Tullytown by the million," said one man from that borough this morning, in speaking of the funny tribe that had disappeared a few days ago. The fish are now in great numbers at the mill race, the pond, and in Martin's Creek.

All residents of that section are greatly interested in the catches, as well as those from nearby towns, and many individuals will make big "hauls" within the next 24 hours, it is predicted. "The fish left a few days ago," said a woman from that section today, "but today they have come back in greater numbers than ever."

The Landreth dwelling was built in 1875 for Capt. Burnet Landreth by James Martin, contractor, who was the grandfather of Mrs. Thomas Lawrence, of Cedar street, and was occupied by Capt. Landreth until he moved to Bristol in 1903. Since that time the dwelling has been occupied by caretakers.

The frame dwellings on Green Lane were occupied by employees of the D. Landreth Seed Company. One of the dwellings was occupied for a number of years by the Bloomsdale Club.

Messrs. Wetherill and Mensel are dividing the land into building lots, which will be offered for sale.

CUSTOMS

Most everybody has wondered where the customs of shaking hands and lifting the hat originated. The question of origin has probably been inspired by thoughts of the futility and uselessness of both customs.

One theory of the origin of the hand-shaking custom is that prehistoric man proffered his right hand to the passerby to indicate that he had left his club at home and was bent on some peaceful pursuit. The custom has deteriorated to a less significant salutation.

The custom of lifting the hat is supposed to have originated when knighthood was in flower and armored knights raised the visors of their helmets upon passing a lady that they might the better see and be seen.

But today one is more apt to hear "tip the hat" than "lift the hat." Is there any relation between this and the fact that men now touch their hats to a lady, whereas they formerly removed their hats entirely with a grand flourish? Customs are subject to change, although most of them survive in some form or other for centuries.

The Parisians—reputed to be the most gallant and courteous of men—are said to be welcoming with a zest a league against hand-shaking in process of organization in France. It recalls the spontaneous public approval given to suggestions to abolish the traditional white house hand-shakings in the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

FILCHING RIDES

Every mode of travel has its parasites. At sea it is the stowaway, and his tactics have remained the same from the era of sailing vessels down to the modern liner and the days of restricted immigration. On land there has been more variety. Thirty years ago the railroads were the main highways for the hobo, who was content to view the country from a freight car door. Once these wanderers were numerous enough to be a pest to train crews. Now they are heard of occasionally, sometimes being listed as "unknowns" among the victims of a freight wreck, but they have mostly disappeared.

Have they taken to the automobile? With their instinct for wandering, they may have seen that the great state and national systems of highways offer them the best opportunities. They depend on the good will of the autoist to "get a lift," and on the long stretches, away from the populous districts, they are generally successful.

The spread of this habit of accepting or soliciting rides is an imposition on the good nature of auto owners. Their real object, of course, is to save carfare home. The whole thing amounts to a petty hold-up and should be stopped. The hobo's way of stealing a ride does not differ so much after all from the more up-to-date method of begging a ride.

Trying to show what you know often shows what you don't know.

People go to the movies to forget everything and some even forget not to talk.

Hunt the bright side. An auto license costs a lot of money but there isn't any upkeep on it.

Sword in hand, the fine old gentleman stalked away, mumbling to himself, "I shall guard my land and my property as I did when the Gold Rush came—I shall kill it if need be. No one but a Vasquez shall own these lands!"

The two young people watched while he took his place before the ruined entrance. He leaned against the broken masonry with his sword at rest and watched with eagle eyes to see that no one passed by the mission on the road that led from town. He was a pathetic figure, holding on, through courage and pride, to all that he held dear in life.

"Poor Granddaddy," Dolores tried to choke down a sob, "we must not disturb him, but I will stay and watch until you return from town."

"All right, sweetheart," nodded Terry in assent, "I will try and return before dark with an injunction, even though it be a temporary one."

Their eyes met, and closed to hold the love that each saw reflected in the other's face. As though drawn by some irresistible force Terry advanced until he was close to Dolores, so close that their hands clasped at their sides and their lips met in a quick kiss that was so terrifying in its sweetness that Terry hurried away.

Long after he was out of sight Dolores stood alone, watching and dreaming. Her thoughts were swept away from sordid reality by the sheer ecstasy of his caress. She wanted him back and began counting the seconds until his return.

And a few feet away stood another sentinel, sword in hand, counting the moments until Buckwell, one of his satellites arrived to carry out the nefarious scheme. Vasquez was prepared to give up his life in defense of his beloved property.

CHAPTER XII

Dolores Is Left Alone

The hour of California's magnificent sunset had come and still Vasquez and Dolores stood guard.

With night approaching, bringing the advent of another day that much nearer, their thoughts were concerned with what was in store for them. No place to go, no friends to consult, no money to draw from! It was a cruel outlook for a chivalrous old nobleman who had grown up with the ancestral acres and enjoyed life in a carefree, indolent manner that harmed no one except himself. His present dilemma was the result of having relinquished business and farming activities to sit back and enjoy life with utter disregard for all responsibilities. Yet, regardless of what Senor Vasquez had or had not done, the land belonged to him, and the expression on his face brooked ill for anyone who dared trespass.

Dolores sat on the mossy ground beneath a great tree with knees cradled in her arms looking at the hacienda. The brilliant reflection from the setting sun turned all its windows to gold, and the soft breeze that was fast dying down stirred the ivy covered walls and made the place seem alive. Her eyes could find no fault with the picturesque old structure. The instinct for a home was deeply planted in Dolores' young breast. She could not bear the thought of going away from the surroundings that had always been so dear. She wanted to live there with Terry and have him become master of the weed filled fields and neglected vineyards as well as of her heart and ancestral home.

The lone servant ambled about the deserted dining room and shook his head as he cleared away the untouched repast. The sound of someone walking through the patio drew him quickly to the open doorway.

"May I be of service, senor?" he asked with deference upon seeing a man crossing to the open yard beyond.

The man was Buckwell. Startled by a voice from the dark interior, he whirled about, and it took him several seconds to discern the dim shape in the doorway.

"Where's your master?" he snarled upon making sure it was the lone servant of the place.

"Outside, senor," came hastily from the cringing peon.

"Where—outside? Now, don't lie to me or I'll break your neck."

"By the mission—the chapel, senor—the chapel!" and two gnarled hands came up protectingly before his face.

With a grunt of satisfaction Buckwell hitched his cane in the crook of his arm and picked his way gingerly across the roughly tiled patio to the path beyond. Having visited the chapel on his first call at the rancho, he knew where to go.

As soon as he came within range of Vasquez's vision the elderly sentinel straightened up from his weary vigil and firmly clutched his sword with half numbed fingers. His knuckles were white from strain.

"You—you have dared return," trembled Vasquez savagely. "You who have betrayed my hospitality and sought to defile my home! Begone—before it is too late!" He stood with outstretched arm and eyes blazing with fury.

At the sound of angry voices Dolores stopped her twilight dreaming and watched intently from behind the tree.

"Cut out the romance," remarked Buckwell impatiently to Vasquez, "and listen to reason. I've got a warrant to take you into court for interfering with my surveyors."

Vasquez drew in a quick breath of shocked surprise.

Noting that his threat had caused the desired alarm, Buckwell continued, "Oh, yes, I know all about it, and the company will sue you for smearing their instrument." He smirked in satisfaction over the other's discomfiture. "You have got to vacate this place by noon tomorrow—understand?" He shook his fist emphatically before Vasquez's face.

Buckwell's words and intolerable rudeness electrified Vasquez, and, inflamed by an increasing anger, he said bitterly, "You seek to dishonor my name." Madly bearing down upon Buckwell, he continued with upraised sword, "But a Vasquez avenges a Vasquez!"

"Are you crazy?" cried Buckwell in alarm, and, frightened by this exhibition of ferocity, he hastily stepped back.

Quivering with rage, Vasquez followed Buckwell's retreat step by step. Extending his sword, he lunged viciously at his betrayer's heart. But the exertion was too great. His waning strength ebbed from his arm and the sword sagged before it touched its intended victim. Tittering uncertainly for a moment, Vasquez plunged forward to the ground.

The promise made hours before was kept. Hernandez Vasquez had defended property and name with his very life!

Buckwell looked down at the prostrate form, his lips still twisted in a sneer. There was no doubt in his mind about the "old man" being dead. It simplified matters considerably to have him out of the way. The young granddaughter was difficult to deal with, but Buckwell knew from experience how to handle such matters. He knew of a hundred ways whereby young girls could be disposed of and no one ever learn their fate. With a shrug of indifference he straightened up from his contemplation of Vasquez's body and was amazed at being confronted by the silent, accusing presence of Dolores.

Her great eyes peered at him as though he were a loathsome monster. He had just committed an irreparable injury, and she was powerless to strike back. With a cry of anguish she dropped to her knees and bent over the inert form.

"Granddaddy!" she called softly. There was no answer. "Granddaddy!" she called again, her hands turned his face from the ground. The lifeless eyes stared blankly. "Oh, dear God!" she sobbed and for a moment pressed her fingers against her own eyes to blot out the sight and realization of what had happened.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

When you buy an electric refrigerator, do a bit of investigating on your own. Look under the cabinet, look carefully inside it, and, above all things, listen to it.

When you look under the cabinet do you find moving parts of machinery or no machinery at all? In the General Electric Refrigerator, you'll notice at once that all the models are up-on-legs. This means an easy job cleaning under them. And it also means that all the machinery is safely sealed away in the airtight steel casing which you see mounted on the top of the cabinet.

Look inside. Is there really ample food space? You will find in the General Electric Refrigerator that the chilling chamber is amazingly compact. It actually takes little more space than the trays in which your ice is frozen.

Then listen. This you must do. We want you to judge for yourself the quietness of this remarkable refrigerator. Come in today. Time payments can be arranged, if you wish.

Women Should Build Up And Strengthen Party

our political life, and we expect to find, and do find for the most part—although there are, of course, exceptions—that the members of a family, regardless of their sex, are likely to have similar political interests and to hold similar political opinions.

"It is partly for this reason that the tendency in this country has been away from anything which resembled a separate woman's party. Women on the contrary, have more and more inclined to join the existing political parties, and to carry on their political activities as party members. This shows that they have sufficient knowledge to understand the mechanism of our system of government, and to appreciate the fact that representative and responsible government is best safeguarded by strengthening, rather than by weakening, the two-party system.

"The minute we break away from our existing system, which provides for a majority party in power, and a minority party in opposition, the function of the first being to carry on the business of government, and the function of the second being to act as constructive critic—we take a step in the direction of irresponsibility and political chaos. If we break down the two party system, which means a division of our population based on fundamental political principles, we necessarily must substitute either the individual, or the group or bloc. Either would mean government by a minority—and in case of government by a minority, the people as a whole cannot place responsibility squarely on any party. Under our present system the responsibility rests on the party in power, and if the people are not satisfied with its record it is in their power to turn over the management of their affairs to the party in opposition.

"I congratulate the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women on their understanding of this fundamental political principle, and on the wonderful service you have rendered to the Republican party in your own state. Your example is an inspiration to Republican women in other parts of the country."

A breakfast for newly appointed chairmen of the various councils to stimulate interest among first voters and potential voters was arranged by Mrs. Graham Dougherty and Mrs. Charles B. Long, who are directing these activities throughout the State for the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women.

Round table conference led by Mrs. Mabelle Kirkbride, of Norristown, newly appointed chairman of the executive committee was devoted to the discussion of organized programmes originated by State headquarters of the council in Philadelphia for the service of the 175 councils throughout Pennsylvania.

"Work to be Done During the National Campaign," was the subject of a talk given by Mrs. Worthington Seranton, vice-president of the Council.

Mrs. G. G. Robb, of Altoona, presided at the luncheon, which closes the conference. The main speeches of the meeting were made by Miss Butler and by Dr. Ralph Hetzel, president of State College.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel, called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store.—(Adv.)

TULLYTOWN VICTORS OVER CAPITAL VIEW

Tullytown handed the strong Capital View its first defeat of the season last Sunday. Bill Fine pitched a beautiful game for Tullytown, holding the hard-hitting Morrisville team to nine hits, and tanning eleven. 'Dutch' Afflerbach caught a great game. Hellings and Riola continued their heavy hitting, each getting two hits. The hitting of Carmen was one of the features; he also made two great catches in the field.

For Morrisville, Phillips played a good game. Margerum's and Clives' hitting were also features of the game.

Memorial Day Here

Observed As Usual

Memorial Day was marked with the usual ceremonies here yesterday. The parade was composed of one Civil War veteran, American Legion, American Legion Cadets and Boy Scouts.

The American Legion Cadets appeared in their new uniforms and made a decided "hit." They certainly are a credit to Bristol and those who have been sponsoring them. The Sons of Veterans also appeared in natty new uniforms and looked very attractive.

The group assembled at the Legion headquarters and proceeded first to St. James's churchyard where the Rev. Henry M. Paynter was the speaker.

Rev. Paynter here gave the Memorial prayer. Rev. James Sullivan was the speaker in St. Mark's Churchyard, and he also gave the Memorial prayer.

The Sons of Veterans conducted the services in St. Mark's cemetery and the Methodist burying ground. In the Bristol cemetery the American Legion ritual was given by W. Ray Smith.

The services were brief in every instance and at the conclusion of the exercises the group returned to headquarters of the American Legion where the American Legion Auxiliary served all with a very bounteous lunch.

Man Dies; Cored by Bull On Farm; Auto Accidents

Trenton, when the handle of a door on an automobile struck his eye, tearing away the socket and the side of his face. He died less than a half hour later at Mercer Hospital from a compound fracture of the skull and remained unidentified until last evening.

Shabicki was returning home on his bicycle with a bag of beets which he had purchased from a farmer near Morrisville. It was learned yesterday from his wife, Helen, when the tragedy occurred.

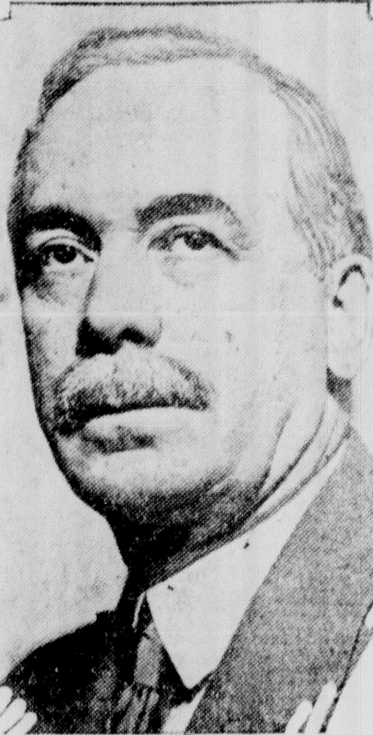

Elihu Heyman, 23 years old, of 4050 Carpenter avenue, New York City, who is said by witnesses to have deliberately sped away toward Philadelphia after stopping his car to find out what had happened, is the autoist who was overtaken at the city line, Philadelphia.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Neal Nolan, at Morrisville, he was held under $3,000 bail on approval of District Attorney Eastburn, of Doylestown. Four other occupants of the car, including Heyman's wife, were held under $500 bail as material witnesses and all were released early yesterday after securing the necessary bail.

The fugitive and his companions in the car denied any knowledge of the mishap when captured by Corporal Welsh, of the Langhorne State Patrol, but they finally confessed to Chief of Police Cooper, of Morrisville, after the handle of the car, which was torn loose, linked them with the tragedy. On the door of the car were also found bloodstains and part of the man's flesh.

Vincent Mallon, ten years old, of 3469 Frankford avenue, Philadelphia, was injured yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding on the Bristol Pike, near Morrisville, overturned in an effort to avoid collision with another car.

Manages Campaign

Mr. James W. Good of Washington, D. C., who has been active recently in the campaign for Secretary of Commerce Mr. Herbert Hoover, is announced as manager of the Hoover's assault on the Republican Presidential nomination.

(International Newsweek)

There is always a demand for that piece of furniture for which you apparently have no further use. Through the classified columns of the Courier a pleased purchaser may be found.

The boy's father, Charles J. Mallon, who was driving the car, and several other occupants narrowly escaped injury. The victim was taken to St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, by his parents. Physicians treated him for lacerations of the neck and eye and he was later able to leave the institution.

The car overturned when the elder Mallon swerved the vehicle sharply around to avoid striking a passing machine.

A car driven by Miss Patton, Torresdale, crashed into the machine of J. E. W. Tracy, Radcliffe and Washington streets, yesterday afternoon. The Patton car was being driven down Radcliffe street when it struck the rear end of the Tracy car which was parked along the curb. Both cars were considerably damaged. In the car with Miss Patton was Miss Elizabeth LeCompte. Both young ladies were somewhat shaken up by the impact.
